The Federal University of São Paulo is located in the most populated and wealthiest state of Brazil: São Paulo.

It has a diversified economy, comprising metal-mechanical industries, sugar and ethanol, textile, chemical, automotive, aerospace and information technology, as well as the service industries, finance and agriculture. Corresponds to 33% of Brazil's GDP and concentrates one third of Brazilian workforce.

The wealth of São Paulo extends beyond monetary assets; it is in the cultural diversity that forged its population since its origin. The city is a true melting pot where Portuguese, Italians, Germans, Jews, Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, French, Africans, Arabs, Spanish and Brazilians, meet and build the city cosmopolitan vocation.

This is the environment where UNIFESP thrives as a comprehensive public university.
